

What The London Business Card will do for you

See below how the London Business Card can help you make the most of your stay in London:

Arriving into London, holders of the card will be able to book tickets for the Heathrow, Stansted and Gatwick Express trains through a dedicated website.

Forgotten your mobile phone? Holders of the London Business Card can book a mobile phone through Mobile Phone Rental, which offers up to five days free phone rental.

Need a meeting room? eOffice is offering a 10% discount on meeting room hire. If a company signs up for a year's membership, one month will be provided for free, allowing use of its serviced offices, meeting rooms and hot-desking.

Following on from the meeting, a presentation needs to be printed and bound. Simple, go to Kinko's. The largest provider of administration services in London, and located throughout the capital, the company is offering a 30% discount on services, together with use of the Internet for 1.5 hours, for the cost of one hour.

You've got an hour to spare, and a workout sounds like a good idea. The London Business Card gives free one-day membership at LA Fitness. The gyms are located throughout London, and are renowned for their state-of-the-art facilities, many of which include a swimming pool.

You've spent a bit too long on the running machine, and you have a pain in your chest.

Don't worry, the London Business Card has the details for Medicentre. Specializing in medical healthcare, one of their qualified GPs will check you out, and can write prescriptions if needs be.

You've been given the 'all-clear' and so it's time to relax. The famous London Black Cab is no longer quite so elusive – a new service from Zingo will allow visitors to call a dedicated phone line to locate the closest available Black Cab in the vicinity. A special secret code (e.g. White Elephant) ensures that the taxi picks up the correct person to take them to their preferred destination.

Hungry? Restaurant Group Chez Gérard, Bertorelli, and Livebait are offering a three- course menu, with a free glass of wine, inclusive of VAT, service and coffee, for just £15. For those wishing to celebrate (or just un-wind), a bottle of the house champagne can be purchased for £15, at half the normal price. This restaurant group has an excellent reputation for good quality food, in pleasant surroundings, and are located throughout central London.

The night is yet young. London Business Card holders get a £5 discount off the £15 door price at the exclusive VIP club at Café de Paris.

If you're feeling a little fragile the following day, then take advantage of a 10% discount at Airport Lounge Services, which cover all of London's airports.

These are just some of the many benefits and services included in the London Business Card.
